ADDRESS OF PRESTON TAYLOR

To the National Christian Convention.

What a leap we have taken from Kansas City, Mo., to the Metropolis of Illinois. It has taken one whole year to make the voyage. Like other journeys, it has been both perilous and costly. Many have been the changes some for the better and some for the worse. But they say we must take the bitter with the sweet. The Master taught that the tare and the wheat grow together until the harvest and then each to be gathered and separated unto their places.

There are some things that grow better with age; "Man" whom God made a little lower than the angels that he might grow. God hath both weighed and measured man and keeps record on his daily life. And He hath numbered accordingly. Every one builds his own house that he lives in, not only here but hereafter. The only thing we carry out of this world with us is our work. A good christian woman, dying in our community said: "I have put my money into the lives of men and women; some have preceded me, some are going with me, and other are to follow. I could not carry land, houses or money with me, but I have put it into souls. That will be the star to shine the brighter in my crown."

The most noble deed performed by our Savior in this world was His work—too numerous to mention. From the entry until the finish of His career, He labored for the benefit and the uplift of those whom He came in contact with. Like a prince, as He ascended to His throne, He sent forth His friends on the greatest mission the world has ever known. "Go forth and continue the work as I have begun." What a noble deed the chief of sinners could lay at the feet of the Master; though headless body His blood spoke of greater work than the deeds that He had performed in the earlier life. May I pause here and ask, have you sent any one to heaven? Have you any one on the road that leads to the city whose builder and maker is God? What is your work? What has it amounted to? Which foundation have you built upon? Has the storm swept it from under you? Or is your work standing? Will it stand the great test when the Master shall assemble all the ends of the earth together? What will His command be? Come ye blessed of my Father, or depart from me, I have never known you!

Let your personality count for much in the great mechanism of your stewardship. Nothing is so profitable as to have an increase. Don't be satisfied with thirty or sixty, make it a hundredfold. Why not be perfect? I am sure we would have a better standing in the community as well as in judgment. So come, let us reason together. What does the individual stand for? Everything must be rendered individually. When we think of the friendship between David and Jonathan or Damon or Pythias, we find each one of these men standing out like the brightness of the noonday sun, representing himself. One could not exist in his purpose without the other. Loyalty is one of the ingredients that we owe both to man and God. Man is the representative of his Creator, not in bodily appearance but in the spirit and work, and he admonishes us to build all things according to the pattern that he has given us. It is not the recommendations that you carry in your pockets that the world reads, but you are known and read from the lines that you are making daily in life.

We are not to seek His kingdom in preference to other kingdoms, but to the exclusion of all others. With the Christians there is but one kingdom. The mind and the heart are to be taken up in this, all other interests will be absorbed in the interest of the Master. Men fix their hearts on their treasures and often resort to the place where they have deposited them to watch over them. May I ask that you place your treasures in the hands of God and frequently visit where you have deposited and there to meet the Heavenly Friend that brings greater riches than the powers of the world can bestow. God will not accept of a rival in His service. He asks for the whole heart. But how different with the devil. He is willing to accept of a part because he knows that by securing a part that he really gets all. The Master said that no man could serve two Masters. We serve that which we love supremely.

When the necessity of a choice presents itself, he will hate the one and love the other like Jacob loved Rachel and hated Leah. He that aims at nothing, hits nothing. Let our aims be high, our ambitions brace up with courage that task which is set before us.

OUR SLOGAN

The past year has been: "Let your light shine." One of the favorite subjects of the Master while on earth was, "Light." God, in creating the world found darkness trying to overcome light. But when He commanded, "Let there be light," it has dispelled darkness ever since. We are placing the light-bearers with as much emphasis as the light itself. A city set on a hill cannot be hidden, that is one of the most prominent reasons why the church of Jesus Christ has given so much light to the world that it sets high above all other institutions that man is the author of. We have not hidden our light under a bushel of sectarian or denominational issues; we have held forth to the world only the message as given by the inspired writers through the New Testament dispensation. It is like the brightness of the Master on the Mount of Transfiguration. No light can improve the existing brightness of the gospel of Jesus Christ because it is the power of God unto salvation.

OUR NATIONAL WORKERS

Mrs. Rosa V. Grubbs, Prof. P. H. Moss, Miss Deesy L. Blackburn and Brother William Alpin are fully measuring up to the task before them. Like the early pioneers, they do not find their pathway strewn with flowers or rosebuds, nor palace cars. They find on the other hand the valley and the mountain, their appointments and disappointments; all of these things they have met and overcome. No one can imagine the hardships a corps of laborers have to undergo. The Master, in his great mission in this world found the barren tree and the closed door as well as Zacharias, sitting up only to give him a gaze, and instead of the onlooker inviting the Master the Master had to extend the invitation Himself. May we learn that these are ours, and may we put forth the very best to help make their journey the more profitable by giving them the best that we have.

NUMERATIONS

The task assigned to the office that I hold grows larger with responsibilities as the days go by. Work is a delightful achievement and we enjoy it to the full extent. We do not complain with a burden, but we are asking for a reasonable consideration from every one that depends upon us for duty. More than the usual amount of time has been given over to sickness and disability since our last national meeting. We are indebted to the brotherhood at large, for their unceasing prayer has answered them favorably. Many have been the calls and we have answered as far as we have been able to do so. We have spent much time, especially in Missouri, Kentucky, and Tennessee. We have seen our churches in great rallies, both for improvement, remodeling and building new houses. I have never seen a more liberal and constantly giving people than some of these that we have been serving during the last few months. We have seen them in their poverty bringing and laying upon the altar hundreds of dollars, and in many instances reaching a thousand. Some of them have given all that they had, holding back nothing for their future substance, but have given, believing that more would follow when they had emptied out the garner. Instead of being ashamed of the race that we are identified with, it is an honor to be numbered with such an earnest set of people who in these last few years have built their own homes, churches to worship their God in school houses to educate their children in and giving to every worthy cause that demands their support. No wonder that God hath blessed them and the nations have stood up and proclaimed their greatness.

LOCAL CHURCHES

The local church is the dynamo that is furnishing the mighty power that is moving the nations. More consideration must be given to the local work. It is not enough to select our best and most reliable men to fill the offices in our churches, many of them are good men, but goodness alone does not supply the needs of the day. We need schools of training where we can gather our forces and train them for the responsibilities for their work in the community.

Several meetings have been held recently, one at Jarvis Christian Institute, and one at the Southern Christian Institute. If we had more of such meetings scattered among our states we would find a great increase of efficiency developing from men that we are depending upon to bring forth fruit worthy of a great people that we represent. The church is like a great reservoir with its machinery it has pumped a great volume of water and is supplying the inhabitants from its tributary streams. It is not enough to hold revivals and add numerical strength to the church. The converts must be instructed that they must have a share in the great stewardship in helping others to see the light and be benefited as they have been themselves.

STATE CONVENTIONS

State conventions have given much information and encouragement to our state work. They have exchanged views, adopted each other's plans, worked out many of the problems and through them many of our churches have been remodelled and built. Young men and women have been induced to advance in knowledge and usefulness in the church. Many of our conventions have been the cause of an increased membership and larger donations for home and foreign work. It is a rare case where you will find any one sending up any opposition to these state works. It would be a great advantage to the national workers if the schedules of these conventions could be worked out so as not to conflict with each other's meetings and give an opportunity to visit the conventions in rotation and in that way would be a great help both to the state and the national work.

STATE EVANGELIST.

The state evangelist is one of the most important men of the day. If he is qualified and equipped, he should know every member and every church and its needs in his jurisdiction. He should be a leader of men in character, in deportment, and have a full supply of intelligence so that he is able to teach and set in order the things that are needful. He should be a man not ashamed of his work but rightly dividing and giving to every one his portion in season. He should be a man that the people would follow. He should not only increase the membership of every congregation but should see that nothing is lacking so far as comfort and beauty to adorn the temple of God. He should organize and build at least one new church in his state a year. His office calls for a man of the day. We are living in an age of progress and thrift, and the church must keep abreast with everything of usefulness and prosperity.

CONDITIONS OF THE RACE

Much of the work is accomplished when we have a clean community to draw from. If their morals are of a high type, the condition of the home have their family altars in them, daily bible readings, constant prayers and their offerings going up as a memorial before God. You may expect a church from such a community entering into the work with greater zeal and more endurance. The unsettled condition of the race has greatly improved since our last national meeting. At one time it seemed that the whole race was moving from the South to the North. The conditions were such as to make it unsafe for them in the Southland. It has worked out a wonderful revolution, and the conditions are such that those who are depending upon the race in many respects to cause lynching to decrease, and seldom do we now hear of mob violence or any disturbance to obtain the peace and happiness of a community. The nation has joined in with the race for better wages, better homes, more schools, and greater service toward God and man.

A CAMPAIGN FOR SOULS

Nothing is so successful for increasing any legitimate organization than unity. In unity we have strength. Many of our churches are lacking in the service of the ministry. As the fall approaches it would be a wise consideration for every community to put on a revival. Our ministers should be most liberal and willing toward helping the weaker congregations. We must not consider the miles and the cost, but we must consider the need of the people. No one in the service of the Master lacks food, clothing or friends. All of these are provided. Much will be accomplished if we accept and obey the commission, "Go ye." One of the main levers in revivals is advertising. Use all the space available in the newspapers, hand bills and posters. See that the congregation is well supplied with bibles and hymn books and see that every one uses them to an advantage. A comfortable seat and a well ventilated church and a man in the pulpit who first knows when to begin and what to say and when to stop, will go a long way toward influencing men and women to take up the trail of a new life.

A COLLEGE

Our church is greatly in need of a real college curriculum, and at the head of it a thorough Biblical man, with a knowledge of teaching and training others. No man can impart to others what he has not gotten himself. We have had schools of agriculture, mechanical training and many other traits relative to the development of the things of this world but we have neglected in a large measure, the training of church leaders. We have waited long to be disappointed in our Central Christian College, being called by some other name. Much of the money that has been given; the donors have complained and are demanding in the name of Christ and all justice, for a faculty necessary to train leaders both among our men and women, for the positions that are waiting for them. We have long asked for a Bible Chair to be placed in the Southern Christian Institute, Jarvis Institute, and Piedmont Christian Institute for the training of those in their reach. Why this prayer is not answered is one of the mysteries that the brethren are praying to be cleared away. It is true of the religious as it of the secular people to give money to that they most need. The greatest need of the church today is opportunity to train men and women for leaders.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. We recommend that our Communion Service should be adorned in the most applicable way—clean white linen and individual communion service as far as possible, and men trained in the most efficient way to administer.

2. That schools of Evangelists be held in each state at least once a year. Since we have derived so much benefit from evangelism, that it be kept on our program as one of the most important features.

3. We recommend that our laymen will be given full consideration and encouragement on the program of both state and national convention.

4. We recommend that our joint executive committees will use every honorable and christian means to bring about a full recognition, and that our wants be compiled with as speedily as possible.

5. We recommend that our national evangelist during the campaign will hold meetings in our large cities, and that the work already accomplished in erecting one of the largest and most beautiful churches be a stimulant to other places of equal importance.

INTERNATIONAL CONVENTION

We are much deighted at the unity that exists between the national and international conventions, but we are asking for larger and greater things as age passes over our existence. Our local congregations should be allowed to have full voice in the selection of the ministry to fill their pulpits, and to have an equal share in counse and advice toward the management and running of the local church. We do not believe that any man or men is commissioned to dictate and control the wishes of the congregation that exists in the great brotherhood.

ST. LOUIS CHURCH

The St. Louis church needs the most serious consideration of the brotherhood in their terrible struggle. They have been greatly imposed upon by ungodly leadership. Men who pretend to be what they are not, never have been, and all the washing of regeneration can never make them what they ought to be. Located in this community, scattered the flock to the four winds of the earth. They say misery likes company, and you can always find some one who believes any one, especially when they are in the wrong.

The city condemned their house of worship and they are now meeting under a tent on a lot that they are buying. St. Louis is one of the most important fields, and the entire brotherhood should take this work under their care and see that they have a building that will compare favorably with the surrounding religious bodies.

Fraternally yours,

We, your committee on time and place, submit the following report:

After prayer and due consideration, knowing only two churches have asked for the national convention for 1925, that either does not seem favorable with the committee, we therefore, unanimously agree to refer the placing of the National Convention of the Disciples of Christ, in the hands of the executive committee to decide time and place of the national convention for 1925.

Respectfully submitted,

A. W. DAVIS,

T. R. EVERETT,

W. P. MARTIN,

Be it resolved:

1. The Eight National Christian Missionary Convention extends thanks and praise to the pastors, official boards and membership of the Armour Avenue and Langley Avenue Christian churches, and the citizens and friends of Chicago, Ill., for their hospitality shown us while guests in your wonderful city. You have made us welcome in your homes, at your tables and pleasure resorts of your city.

We wish also to express our thanks and appreciation to the young people who have cared so well for us in the dining hall, trying to satisfy our hungry appetites three times a day,

And be it resolved: That we bow in humble submission to the Great Father for His great love, care and guidance through this, our greatest national convention ever held; and may the God of Peace, Power and Plenty bless these great christian people of Chicago, Illinois in erecting a magnificent building to and for the glory and honor of the name of Christ whose disciples we are.

Respectfully submitted,

Recommendations of Business Committee

1. We recommend that Article 2, of the By-Laws, reading: "Each state convention shall pay an enrollment fee of not less than $10.00," be amended to read: "Each state and regional convention shall pay an enrollment fee of $5.00 for each church co-operating in convention."

2. Inasmuch as the doors of our Benevolent Institutions are closed to Negro disciples. We recommend that the joint executive committee for the sake of our aged and orphaned dependents take up seriously ways and means of meeting this urgent need and report to the 1925 convention.

3. We recommend that the joint executive committee consider the feasibility of opening the closed doors of foreign missionary service to the young men and women of the Negro churches.

4. We recommend that the executive committee have printed 500 copies of the constitution for distribution.

5. We recommend that the regular calendar of special days as outlined by the U. C. M. S. be observed by our churches.

6. We recommend that this convention go on record as condemning the violation of the constitution of the U. S. and its amendments. We call special attention to the 18th, 14th and 15th.

7. We recommend that the executive committee take immediate steps for the incorporation of the National convention.

8. We recommend that a commission be appointed by the executive committee to collect data and publish a history of the Negro Disciples..

9. We recommend as worthy of our support, the Goldsboro Christian Institute.

10. We recommend that it is the sense of the national convention to endorse our schools and that all churches observe "Go to College Day," and urge our best young men and women to attend our schools where it is possible.

11. We recommend that our churches give to the national Finding Home Society under the leadership of Bro. D. Singleton their moral and financial support.

12. We recommend that the convention endorse and accept as their own program the program of Evangelism as set forth by Bro. Bader, superintendent of Evangelism U. C. M. S. The three objections shall be: a—Revive the local church; b—Evangelize the unreached; c—Conserve results.

13. We recommend that the State Workers, Regional Workers, and Field Workers arrange and hold as many evangelistic institutes as possible.

14. We recommend that the executive committee arrange annually for a music director for the national convention.

15. We recommend that the joint executive committee take under consideration the publishing of a newspaper for the Negro Brotherhood edited by one of our own group.

16. We recommend that the executive committee accept the gracious offer of our President, Preston Taylor, recording the transfer of certain properties to the National Convention and that steps be taken to have the proposal legally executed.

H. L. HEROD, Chairman.

5. That, in view of the fact that the united society and the national convention are practically distinct organizations, seeking a working basis of co-operation for the promotion of the kingdom, we recommend that the joint-executive committee consist of eight members, four of whom shall be nominated by the executive of the national convention, and four of whom shall be appointed by the executive committee of the united society.
