FOREWORD

This five volume comprehensive Index of the Christian Standard covers 100 years of the history of the American Movement "to restore the New Testament Church in doctrine, ordinances and life" (1866-1966). The Restoration Movement, which had its origins in the early years of the Nineteenth Century on the Allegheny frontier, has now become one of the largest and most significant developments in American church history. Its constituent members are commonly known at the local level as "Churches of Christ," "Disciples of Christ" and "Christian Churches."

Prominent in the leadership of the Movement were Thomas and Alexander Campbell, Barton W. Stone and Walter Scott. The specific date of origin is often cited as 1809 when Thomas Campbell issued his "Declaration and Address" a definitive document setting forth an undenominational Biblical basis for the unity of all Christians. All these pioneer leaders advocated the abandonment of divisive sectarian lines and dogmas based on human creeds and a return to the Bible and the Bible alone as the basic and authoritative rule of faith and practice.

By the 1830's the Movement had become one of the major religious communions in the states bordering the Ohio River and had begun to penetrate areas to the West of the Mississippi River. By the beginning of the Twentieth Century there were approximately 1,600,000 members in the USA. Its Centennial Convention in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania in 1909 drew an estimated 35,000 from every state in the Union and many foreign lands.

In all Movements whether they be political, social or religious, a Right, Left and Center usually develop as they grow toward maturity. This situation was evident in the American Restoration Movement in the second century of its history.

The Rightists held that there should be no beliefs or practices permitted in the churches, which were not specifically ordered by the Scriptures. This position led to controversies over many issues including missionary organizations, Sunday schools, full-time ministers, and the use of instrumental music in worship.

The Leftists, on the other hand, abandoned the full and final authority of the New Testament as the normative pattern in faith and life. They denied that fellowship is predicated on a common body of doctrine and developed a theology based on expediency and opinion exalting the liberty of the human mind. They abandoned the undenominational, free-church concepts of Christian fellowship and moved toward the creation of a full-fledged denomination with a centralized ecclesiastical authority.

The Centrists continued to accept the Holy Scriptures as the divinely inspired alone and sufficient revelation of God's will for mankind and of Christ and His Gospel. They believed that the basic pattern for the Church is revealed in the New Testament and that it is the duty of every Christian to restore and maintain that pattern. In the midst of the divided Christian world they consider themselves to be "Christians only" but not "the only Christians." They are deeply concerned for the unity of all Christians and work zealously for the attainment of the great hope of Christendom—"Unum Corpus in Christo."

In the American Yearbook of Churches Rightists of the Restoration Movement are listed as "Churches of Christ" with a membership of approximately 2,500,000; the Centrists as the "Christian Church (Disciples of Christ)" with 1,500,000 members; and the Leftists as "Christian Churches and Churches of Christ" with 1,250,000 members. The overseas constituencies of the three groups bring the total numerical strength of the inclusive Restoration Movement to more than 6,000,000.

The history of the Restoration Movement in America reveals the fact that its various beliefs and practices have been developed through free discussion and debate, carried on largely through its periodical literature. Different opinions have been expressed and basic doctrines have been examined in such outstanding journals as The Christian Baptist, the Millennial Harbinger, the Christian Standard, the Gospel Advocate, the Firm Foundation, the Christian-Evangelist, The Christian and the Christian Century. In this frame of reference the Christian Standard today looms large, as the oldest and the most widely circulated periodical of the Movement.

The Christian Standard was founded as the result of a voluntary meeting of Christian brethren held at the home of Thomas W. Phillips, nationally-known industrialist and church leader, at New Castle,

Pennsylvania, December 22, 1865. A joint stock company was formed and a committee was named to obtain a charter and necessary papers for organization under the title of "Christian Publishing Association." Isaac Errett was chosen editor-in-chief and the journal was named the "Christian Standard" because, in his words: "We propose to lift the Christian Standard, as a rallying point for the scattered hosts of spiritual Israel; to know only "Jesus Christ and Him crucified," His cross, His word, His church, His ordinances, His laws and interests of His kingdom."

The board of directors consisted of James A. Garfield, W. S. Streator, J. P. Robinson, T. W. Phillips, C. M. Phillips, G. W. N. Yost and W. J. Ford. Streator was elected president; W. J. Ford, secretary; and J. P. Robinson, treasurer.

The first issue of the Standard came from the press on April 7, 1866, with the motto on its masthead, "Set Up a Standard; Publish and Conceal Not." It contained, beside the usual doctrinal and devotional and news articles of the current journals of the brotherhood, discussions of the moral and religious aspects of public issues in the fields of literature, art, education, science, commerce and government. It recognized its relationship to the whole Christian community and carried information concerning the views and proceedings of all denominations and interchurch organizations. It was immediately hailed as a distinct addition to the religious journalism of the nation.

The Standard enjoyed a wide and favorable acceptance until the days following the Civil War brought general economic ruin to the nation, and financial difficulties beset the new venture. The checkered career of the Christian Publishing Association cannot be detailed here. Suffice to say that, at a meeting of the executive committee in 1868, the ownership of the paper was transferred to Errett. To fend off bankruptcy he accepted the presidency of Alliance College; but when similar financial problems beset that institution, the editor decided to give up the publication. It was at this juncture that God providentially provided a Good Samaritan in the person of R. W. Carroll, a Quaker, in Cincinnati, Ohio. He had been impressed with the high quality of journalism evident in the new publication. His experience in printing many books of Christian church ministers and educators had been rewarding, and he felt led to underwrite the Standard and issue it on the presses of R. W. Carroll and Company. Errett gladly accepted this offer and the first issue from Cincinnati appeared on July 31, 1869. J. S. Lamar, of the distinguished Georgia family of that name, became associate editor.

For some forty years (approximately 1870 to 1910) the Christian Standard was the chief compendium of information, thought and action in the Restoration Movement. Isaac Errett was long a towering figure—prophet, theologian, interpreter, counsellor, arbiter, strategist and statesman—in the religious world. He did much to deliver the Restoration Movement from the atavism and despotism of reactionary forces and to project a nobler concept of the task of the church and the responsibilities it imposed.

Objective opinion is united in believing that it is impossible to get a balanced view of the American Restoration Movement without scholarly access to all the issues of the Christian Standard. Yet, because of the limited and inadequate files and indices, this source has been virtually closed for generations. As a result too much of our "scholarly thought" has been biased and, in some instances, untrustworthy.

Christian Standard has been and is an incomparable source of news about persons, places and events that make history. For at least three generations it was known as "the newspaper of the brotherhood." Even though many have disagreed with its editorial positions and policies, they subscribed to "get the news."

In the new Standard Index scholars and researchers can find recorded most those significant currents of thought and action which (1) saved the Restoration Movement from the legalism and reactionism rampant in the 1870's and 80's; (2) inspired effective brotherhood cooperation and action; (3) created an effective theological apologetic for "our plea" which could be understood and appreciated by the Christian world; (4) promoted a new organized church life expressed in Sunday schools, youth groups, women's societies, missionary agencies, schools and colleges, assemblies and conventions; and (5) cultivated and radiated the spirit of Christian unity which was implicit in the New Testament and the "Declaration and Address."

During a period of vast scientific, social and theological change in American Protestantism, Christian Standard became noted as the ardent defender and advocate of (1) "the faith once for all delivered to the saints," (2) the Restoration principle in the promotion of Christian unity, and (3) the free church and free-agency polity which has so long characterized the organizational life of the brotherhood. It has vigorously opposed the rise of theological liberalism and all tendencies toward the centralization of ecclesiastical authority. It has aggressively promoted "independent" action in a wide range of Christian services.

For many years the scientific, professional and comprehensive indexing of the Christian Standard was only a dream in the minds of concerned scholars, due to the immense cost of such a project and the unavailability of expert indexers with essential background in Restoration history and principles.

Then B. D. Phillips, noted industrialist and philanthropist, a son of one of the founders of the Christian Standard, was led to see the importance of such a project. He realized, as few others in the Restoration Movement, the importance of making the immense storehouse of knowledge contain in the thousands of issues of the Standard a living, vital force in the thinking of new generations. Mr. Phillips conducted a considerable correspondence with those he thought might join him in financing and directing it. Finally, in June 1965, he decided to underwrite it with a large personal contribution and with the assistance of the charitable trusts of the Phillips family.

Mr. Phillips was fortunate in enlisting the services of Dr. Claude E. Spencer, former curator of the Disciples of Christ Historical Society, and the supervisor of the indexing of The Christian-Evangelist (1863-1958), to direct the undertaking. In October, 1965, the actual work began in ideal rented facilities of the Disciples Historical Society. Dr. Spencer became the supervisor and chief indexer, directing a force of capable assistants. Standard Publishing, of Cincinnati, publishers of the Christian Standard, provided for his use the finest available copies of the journal. Dr. Burris Butler, then executive editor of the company, and Dr. Edwin V. Hayden, editor of the Standard, were most cooperative. The details of the massive operation, believed to be the largest of its kind in religious journalism, will be provided by Dr. Spencer.

It was the privilege of the undersigned to share with Mr. Phillips in the planning for the Index from the beginning. He asked me to assume an advisory relationship with Dr. Spencer until the project was completed. He asked his son-in-law and business associate, Mr. Rolland L. Ehrman, of Butler, Pennsylvania, to assume responsibility for all fiscal matters involved. Mr. Phillips charged us, in event of his passing before the project was completed, with seeing it through according to his original intentions. Mr. Phillips passed to his reward October 23,1968. Providentially we have been able to publish the work as a tribute to his memory as one of his greatest contributions to the Restoration Movement, a cause which he loved and served so faithfully.

Upon the recommendation of Mr. Ehrman, the charitable trusts of the Phillips family, which bore the considerable costs of the entire Indexing operation, are giving 250 bound copies of the Index, the master microfilm and copies, the extensive equipment purchased to insure indexing according to the highest possible standards, and other designated material, to the Disciples of Christ Historical Society. The Society is prepared to sell the complete Index with or without the entire microfilm. The Standard Publishing company is presenting the Society with a set of the complete original files of the Christian Standard which they so kindly loaned to Dr. Spencer in the beginning of the project.

Today, with the centripetal and centrifugal forces at work in the life of the Restoration Movement, the indexing of the Christian Standard will release to scholars, researchers, and students sources of information that will enable them better to evaluate these forces and better to understand the issues at stake. We devoutly hope that the Index will contribute to the realization of a greater unity in and deeper understanding of the high ideals which have made the Restoration Movement such a vital force in the life of Christendom.

INTRODUCTION

The indexing of the Christian Standard was begun October 1, 1965 with a staff of two people; the supervisor and one indexer. Six months later a second indexer was added. In the summer of 1966 a part time file clerk came on the staff. Until 1970 the staff was composed of the same number of people although the personnel changed frequently due to the fact that the staff was composed mainly of Vanderbilt University graduate student's wives and Peabody Library School students.

The last entries in the index were made in September 1970. Revision started immediately with an indexer, the supervisor, and a typist and proceeded until the end of 1971 when only the supervisor and a typist finally completed the revision in early March, 1972. During the revision period a part time worker was employed to cut duplicate headings from entry cards.

Page make-up started March 9 with one person working. Before the project was finished six were employed. In arranging page make-up for the printer a shingling process was used. This involved the original typed cards being arranged in three columns on sheets of card board (18 x 24 inches in size) fastened to a specially designed board. Under each author or subject entry the first card was used as typed while added entries for that author or subject had their heading clipped. Due to this type of page make-up some lines may not be straight with other lines and margins may not always be even.

My appreciation is expressed to these nineteen persons who helped in making the index and getting it ready for the printer: Louise Adams, indexer; Erwin Ann Douglas, indexer; Marsha Sue Pearson, file clerk; Barbara Bradner, indexer; Roberta Diane White, file clerk; Helen Riddle, file clerk and indexer; Suzanne Blackburn, indexer; Betina Ann Bias, file clerk; Judith S. Barber, indexer; Peggy Louise Mayo, file clerk, indexer, and shingler; Mona P. Harrison, indexer and reviser; Alta Kay Neighbert, file clerk; Pauline Bradera, file clerk; Margaret Slack, typist and shingler; Reneé Jensen, cutter and shingler; Betty Jean Amekuji, shingler; Cathy Chamblee, shingler; Cindy Smith, shingler; Margaret Mayo, shingler.

The making of an index for a periodical issued weekly for a hundred years is not an easy task to be done quickly. The number of pages ranged from 312 the first year to 2320 in 1910 making a total of approximately 110,000 pages to be checked by the indexers. A fully comprehensive index including the name of every person, place or event whenever and wherever mentioned would take millions of entries and would require the work of many persons over a period of many years. Consequently the following general rules were adopted as to just what should be included in the index: (1) the authors of all articles; (2) the subjects of all articles; (3) the subjects of editorials; (4) all head line news of persons, churches, organizations, and institutions; (5) all obituaries; (6) all book reviews; (7) all poems; (8) all marriages; (9) all illustrations; and (10) news of churches under state headings. Personal news notes and news notes in general columns were to be omitted.

When the making of entries stopped there were over 600,000 entries not including cross references.

The procedure in the making of index entries was for one indexer to do the articles, editorials and features in one volume while the other indexer was doing the news items, obituaries, poem, marriages, and book reviews in another volume. The entries were typed on standard library cards just as they would appear in the finished index. The file clerk then filed the entry chronologically under author and subject headings which were filed alphabetically by words not letters.

Subject headings on entry cards were typed in capital letters while author entries were typed lower case. Indexers descriptive notes were enclosed in brackets [ ]. All poems were entered alphabetically by author under the subject heading POEMS. Book reviews were entered alphabetically by author of the book under the subject heading BOOK REVIEWS.

Special attention has been given in trying to verify the full names of persons as authors or subjects. Many references have been used including the standard biographical reference works, Disciple works such as Brown's Whos Who in Churches of Christ and scores of individual biographies; the Christian-Evangelist Index; and the biographical files of the Pension Fund in the archives of the Disciples of Christ Historical Society.

Women as authors or subjects have been entered under their married names (if married) with cross references from their maiden names and their husband's names. Persons with the same name are entered with the dates of their birth and death. If these are unknown the names are still separately entered.

An added help for the researcher who may be working on the subject of education among the Disciples is a subject heading EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS with a cross reference listing of the names of individual institutions. This is also true for BENEVOLENT INSTITUTIONS, Periodicals published by Disciples under PERIODICALS, and for churches in each state; e.g. ALABAMA. CHURCHES.

Reference books used in choosing subject headings included List of Theological Subject Headings by Julia Petee; Subject Headings Used in the Dictionary Catalogs of the Library of Congress; and Sears List of Subject Headings. Occasionally as need arose new subject headings applicable to the Disciples were created.

The volume numbering of the Standard at the beginning was by calendar year. Volume One began April 7, 1866 and ended December 29 the same year. Volume Two began January 5, 1867 and ended December 28, 1867. This pattern was followed until 1914 when the volume stopped with the September 26 issue and the next volume began October 3, 1914 which ended September 25, 1915. This practice was continued until 1925 when volume 60 began October 4, 1924 and ended December 26, 1925. Again volume numbering by calendar years was resumed and has continued until the present. An error made in volume numbering made in 1890 was not corrected until 1914. Because of the variations and errors in the numbering entries in the index omit volume numbers and refer only to the year, weekly date, and consecutive page.
