Kentucky School Situation.

The following statement on the Kentucky school was presented and approved by the Convention.

The Joint Executive Committee has had an extended conference with representatives from Kentucky regarding the educational situation in that state. The result of this conference has been amicable and may be set forth in the following findings:

1. The Kentucky brethren feel that the educational efforts which have been put forth at Hubers are not meeting their needs, and they recommend to the United Christian Missionary Society that the work at this point be discontinued and that the property be sold. In this recommendation the Joint Executive Committee concurs.
2. In view of the early connection Kentucky had through the Christian Woman's Board of Missions in the training of the Colored Ministry of our Brotherhood and the repeated investments that have been made in such work by the Colored Disciples of Kentucky, and the friends of Kentucky, and in view of the great need today for a trained ministry, there is a strong desire in Kentucky to continue within this state, as far as possible, an educational institution where the primary purpose shall be The Training of Ministers for the Negro Churches.

The Joint Executive Committee therefore recommends that this matter be given the most earnest consideration by the Home Department of the United Christian Missionary Society during the coming year, and that the results of such investigation to meet this need be brought before the Joint Executive Committee at an early date for presentation to the Kentucky brethren, either in a specially called meeting or in the next regular meeting of the State Convention and for presentation in the next National Convention.

In the meantime, the Joint Executive Committee has the assurance that no educational work among the Negroes will be instituted or discontinued or seriously modified by the United Christian Missionary Society without the full consideration of the Joint Executive Committee.

Recommendation on Elementary Superintendent.

We recommend to the National Convention and the United Society that we employ Miss Bessie Chandler of Nashville, Tennessee, as Elementary Superintendent of Bible Schools to begin work in May, 1928, with the understanding that her salary be to start with $65.00 a month and expenses and that she spend a year in the Southern Christian Institute, taking Bible courses for which we agree to allow her a scholarship of $200.00.

RECOMMENDATIONS COMMITTEE.

We, the Committee on Recommendations, beg leave to make the following report. We recommend the adoption of the resolutions submitted by the President, which are as follows:

1. That the Bible Schools of the several states so plan the machinery of their organization that they may add at least 25% of their present membership during the next conventional year, and that provision be made to show gains on the state report blanks.

2. That as many churches in our brotherhood as can afford it will employ a trained leader who will direct the educational program of the church, especially as relates to the young people's activities in trying to find themselves in this new age of development.

3. That the names and addresses of the state presidents and secretaries be printed in the minutes for the purpose of establishing a means of better understanding by correspondence.

4. That a faculty of five, composed of the National Secretaries of religious education with two others, will organize a course in religious education to train leaders for the work in our local churches. This faculty will give a regular course of lectures at the next National Convention, and at the conclusion the applicants will take an examination and be awarded certificates.

5. That each state represent with $10.00 and each local school with $2.00 in the National Convention.

6. That each State President will furnish to the National Corresponding Secretary the names and addresses of each local superintendent of the Bible School in his or her state not later than October of this year.

7. That our four national days, namely—Thanksgiving Sunday, Christmas Sunday, Easter and Children's Day—be more loyally and systematically supported by every school in every state in the brotherhood and the offerings sent to the U. C. M. S. immediately thereafter.

8. That the real spirit as shown by the Young People's Conference has proven so wholesome that our different states are urged to encourage outstanding, religiously-inclined young men and women to attend these annual meetings even to the extent of defraying all expenses.

9. That further each state when possible may, through the proper channels, place a Young People's Conference in its own region.

10. That at least one or two special addresses on Bible School methods be delivered before the Convention by some expert, looking forward to which such a person be found by the Program Committee.

THE COMMITTEE.

REPORT OF THE AUDITING COMMITTEE.

The Auditing Committee reported a mistake of a few cents found in treasurer's, recording secretary's and children's workers' reports. The error was corrected.

THE COMMITTEE.

THE SUPPLEMENT.

The first thing in this supplement is the Revised Constitution adopted by the National Convention at Washington, D. C., on September 2, 1927.

The addresses reviewed here are those delivered by the persons named at this Convention. These are not excerpts. Often no quotations from the addresses are in this little review. The object is to give in this form some of the substance of the addresses for use and consideration in the local organizations. The entire address appears in the Christian Plea and can be obtained from that office by anyone interested in the full report. Some sermons and speeches, however, are taken from the minutes of the session and were not written, hence will not be published.

Where possible the tables of statistics of the conventions are combined, thus cutting down on the amount of duplication.

The reports of the Field Workers are also given in full in this supplement.

Last there is a table giving the offerings of the various states by churches and departments to the U. C. M. S. for the year July 1, 1926, to June 30, 1927. This appears in the Year Book, but as this volume is not available to all at all times, the re-issue of it in this minute will be considered as a service to the churches.

HIGH POINTS IN ADDRESS OF NATIONAL PRESIDENT.

Eld. Preston Taylor, Nashville, Tenn.

He mentioned the following facts:

Illness prevented the amount of work being done that is usually accomplished. The first invitation accepted was to deliver the Commencement Address at Jarvis Christian College. Next he visited the church at Chicago and found it in a good condition.

The next trip was to the Tennessee State Convention at Bristol.

The work of the Joint Executive Committee has been gratifying.

The Christian Plea has not been supported by the brotherhood as it should have been. Money is necessary to make the paper whatever it is wished to make it. The best that can be done with the limited funds is now being done in regards to the paper.

The survey of the schools resulted in the making of Jarvis Christian Institute a Junior College, Southern Christian Institute doing Junior College work and Piedmont Christian Institute a feeder for these two. Fisk is a college because it had and has the money necessary to make it reach the requirements. So it is with our schools. Colleges are the dividends on investment.

If one cannot be a booster, don't be a croaker. If nothing helpful can be said, then silence is the best policy. Let harmony and peace continue was the closing injunction of the president.

HIGH POINTS IN THE ADDRESS OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE BIBLE SCHOOL CONVENTION.

By Prof. T. W. Pratt, Dallas, Texas.

He deplored the fact that a greater number of boys and girls can be attracted to the show than to the Bible School or other religious gathering.

He emphasized the necessity of using a definite plan and purpose in the Bible School as is used in the factory in measuring the time, money and energy needed to produce the products. Boys and girls are more interested if given an opportunity to help plan the part they will take on the program of the Bible School. Our schools must do more to hold the youth.

He pointed out the constant change in the secular things and prophesied that the church must change its methods to keep pace with the secular movements.

The Church must link up and save the boys and girls of our brotherhood.

STUDYING MISSIONS FROM A WORLD'S VIEWPOINT.*Presidential Address of Mrs. W. Alphin at the W. M. S. Convention.

The early church was a missionary church. It gave all of its surplus means in money, man-power and spiritual strength to the propagation of the gospel among the nations.

This same spirit of missionary zeal came into America and caused the organization of Missionary Societies in every communion including our own. The Christian Woman's Board of Missions was organized over fifty years ago and was merged with the United Christian Missionary Society in 1920.

The work that is being initiated and administered under this society is of the type that commands the interest and support of all loyal Disciples of Christ. The work among the Negro in the south, the educational work among the mountain whites, the missionary, social and recreational program for our young people, the agencies for leadership training, as well as the foreign missions are all parts of a world missionary effort.

The greatest work of mankind is an unselfish work. Race prejudices have no place in a missionary program and youth has early recognized this fact. Missions from a world viewpoint is the only solution for race problems.

(This address appears in the Christian Plea for November 12.)

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR PROGRAM.*The Annual Address of Eld. S. C. Devine, President of the C. E. Convention.

Youth requires a saving agency and the Christian Endeavor is an attempt to provide an organization for that purpose.

Its program is so arranged that it tends to save through the enlistment of every power of youth in its activities. Loyalty and fidelity are its watch-words.

Fidelity in worship to a graded worship program is the ideal that is sponsored.

Fidelity in instruction presupposes example and precept in teaching.

Fidelity in recreation plans to take care of the surplus energy and direct it toward the building of a spiritual personality.

Fidelity in service is engaged in the use of the individual thus trained through worship, instruction and recreation in some definite bit of actual work for the benefit of others.

(This address appears in the Christian Plea of October 29, 1927.)

HIGH POINTS IN THE ADDRESS OF MR. R. M. HOPKINS.*By Mr. R. M. Hopkins, St. Louis, Mo.

First he spoke in glowing terms of the beginnings of the National Convention and of the continued and wonderful fellowship that had been the portion of all who attended regularly.

His subject matter for the address was based upon the trip he had recently taken to Belgium in the interests of Religious Education. He mentioned the plans there made for the World Sunday School Convention to meet in Los Angeles, California, next July 11-19, this being the first one in the last decade in this country.

Also he made fraternal visits to Great Britain, France, Denmark and Norway. He told of the condition of our brotherhood in these lands. France has only a small group due to the strength of the Roman Catholic Church in that land. Two small congregations in Copenhagen are the sole representatives of the Christian Church in Denmark. In Norway there were twelve or fifteen churches. In fact, on the continent of Europe there are less Disciples than on any other continent in the world, even though the rest of the world beside America is considered non-Christian lands.

He mentioned five reasons that he believes to lie at the basis of the unproductiveness of the Christian Churches in Europe.

1. They lay little emphasis on the Bible School and religious education.

2. They are not fired by an evangelistic zeal.
3. They are unorganized in a larger way like state, regional or national conventions or assemblies.
4. They do not train their young men for the ministry.
5. They are possessed by a missionary passion like the one that thrill the hearts of the Christians here in America for those who have gone out to do the larger work of the kingdom.

CARING FOR OUR JUNIORS.

Address by Miss Bessie Chandler, Nashville, Tenn., at the W. M. S. Convention.

The world in all of its progress finds itself dependent upon the advances that are made through the education of its children. The church before it can attain to the new era of Christian efficiency and service must educate at least one generation to the program.

In caring for our Juniors, the contacts must be natural, that is through channels that are open to the mind of the young person. Reading is one of the activities of this age. Hero worship is another. The lives and labors of the missionaries and their ventures in quest of Christian universality, make reading for this age that will educate religious as it feeds the imagination.

Special care in this age of character-building and ideal-formation means much to the future Christian activity of the individual.

(This entire address may be found in the Christian Plea of October 8, 1927.)

YOUTH AND THE MISSIONARY PROGRAM.

Address by Mrs. Ardellia Staples, Baltimore, Md., at the W. M. S. Convention.

Youth has five qualities that the church can well develop, namely, independence, heroism, enthusiasm, faith and activity. The church's part is to train these potentialities in such a manner that growth and development will naturally result in Christian personalities that are missionary in every impulse.

Most of the indifference and opposition to the missionary projects come from ignorance of the enterprise. Because charity begins at home does not obviate the obligation to make disciples of all nations.

An adequate missionary program does not only include preaching the gospel to the heathen but also the tasks of healing, education, reformation, cleansing, and socializing the backward peoples.

Missionary instruction in the Bible School as well as in the missionary organization, ties up the youth to the program. Vocational guidance recruits workers for the missionary task.

But after all, example is the best teacher for youth. (This address appears in the Christian Plea for October 1, 1927.)

THE JOYOUS TASK OF LEADING CHILDHOOD TO CHRIST.

Address by Mrs. E. Starling read by Mrs. E. B. Penn at the Bible School Convention.

The field of vocations is large. Each one renders joy to those selecting it. But there is no joy to compare with the pleasure of leading childhood to Christ.

The joy that it brings is fourfold.

1. It brings unlimited pleasure to the Christian worker to lead the faltering young footsteps in the paths of righteousness.
2. It rejoices the heart of the loving Christ to have the little ones brought unto Him for His benediction on their lives.
3. It brings joy to the heart of the adult Christian to witness the surrender of a young life full of potentialities and possibilities to the service of the Christ. For in this store of man-power lies the future of Christianity and its world program of uplift.

4. It brings joy to the child to be allowed to take refuge in Him whose kingdom is based upon the innocent qualities of pure, unsullied Childhood.

(The entire address may be found in the Christian Plea of October 22, 1927.)

TRAINING IN SERVICE.

Address by Miss J. K. Spencer, Roanoke, Va., at the Bible School Convention.

Training IN service is the term, not training TO serve, nor FOR service, nor training BEFORE service but IN service—a progressive education based upon the laws of learning through doing.

Training is the watchword of this day. In every profession, occupation, vocation and process, training is imperative. This necessity for special preparation has progressed beyond the class of leaders and we are coming to realize the importance of a trained followship.

Service is a Christian ideal. Selfishness is a past virtue. But to serve adequately, preparation is necessary. This is obtained through the demonstration of trained leaders, constant practice and the use of suggestions made by experts.

The great essential is training. All that is efficient and orderly in a process is the result of intensive training. If real vital service is the mission of the church, surely training in service is imperative.

(This address appears in the Christian Plea of October 15, 1927.)

THE NEED FOR TRAINED MINISTERS.

The Address of Eld. R. H. Davis, Cincinnati, O., at the Church Convention.

Christian ministers have an example of scholarship and intellectual power in Jesus Christ who was well prepared to do His Father's business. Spiritual preparation is imperative in the follower of Jesus and is gained in no school or university. It is the growth of a soul in constant communion with God.

The need for training in ministers is urgent because of the pastor's peculiar relationship with all men and all issues. He must aid the people of his community to meet all the crises that arise whether they be economic, social, physical, political, intellectual or spiritual. Ministers need to cultivate the type of mind that can grasp and use every means of satisfying the needs of mankind.

Men of broad outlook and comprehensive vision are necessary for the ministry. Negativism is the essence of the gospel preached by a narrow individual.

Politics demands much of spiritual guidance and so deeply affects every man that the minister must be prepared to cope with the national and local issues of the political world.

Urbanization of population carries an impetus to preparation and training in Christian leaders. Respect and recognition of our church in the cities largely depend upon the personality and intellectual status of the minister pastoring there.

Success or failure of our program is pendant upon our leadership. Our apostolic example of the Disciples of Christ is gemmed with the teachings, writings and works of trained men. Missionary ventures were made by men who were scholars as well as Christians.

Men, money and training schools are the triple needs of our communion. Ministers must be kept in advance of the literacy increase if they are to be real leaders.

The task is ours as a brotherhood. Four classes of people in the churches can help greatly in obtaining a more efficient ministry.

1. The members possessed of material blessings should make larger gifts to Christian education, both in endowing schools and providing scholarships for promising young men.

2. The older ministers should encourage those striving for the ministerial calling to become better prepared.

3. The young minister should be ready and willing to make any sacrifice to get the best educational training possible.

4. The educated people of the church should help in the solving of race, denominational, social and religious problems in the community, thus demonstrating the use of training. To these falls the task of vitalizing the Christian motif in the community.

(This address appears in the Christian Plea of November 5, 1927.)

REPORT TO THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

By Supt. of Religious Education, Prof. P. H. Moss.

There is nothing that gives me more pleasure than to be able to work with others as well as to work for them. "Light is the task when many share the toil." It seems to me that one of the most outstanding features of our labor this year has been the fine spirit of co-operation with both the field force and the constituents of the field.

We have followed very closely in many ways our regular routine of work on the field serving the states of Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Kansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, Missouri, Illinois, Ohio, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

We have served our department of religious education through conventions, conferences, personal and group, week-end institutes, school of methods, young people's conference, vacation church school and office work. We have written a few articles to the Christian Plea and co-operated with the editor in endeavoring to place the Plea in every home. I wish to say that in this case there is much land yet to be possessed.

I attended several State Conventions and the International and the first Youth Convention of the Disciples of Christ held in Memphis, Tennessee. One of the most interesting conventions attended was the General Assembly of the Disciples of Christ in East North Carolina. This assembly convened at Pantego, N. C. Goldsboro-Raleigh District comprises about 24 counties extending from Oxford County in the northern part of the state to Wilmington County in the south, and as far east as Washington County. The Norfolk-Washington District comprises about 20 counties extending as far east as the coast. These two districts every quadrennial meet into what they call the General Assembly, representing a constituency of possibly more than 20,000. People zealous for the name Disciple, yet differing somewhat in their mode of worship, etc.

Leadership Training.

We feel that this year has surpassed any previous year in Leadership Training. The early part of February was spent in Tri-State Conference and Institute, bringing workers from Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri. The program that was so well planned that it took into account every phase of church work. All attending this conference expressed themselves greatly helped. June 6-12 our attention was given to the second Young People's Conference, which was held at the Southern Christian Institute, Edwards, Miss. Through this conference we reached the youth of the church with leadership training. Schools of Methods were held in the Piedmont District, Kentucky and Ohio, respectively. The Piedmont District and the Ohio Five Days' School of Methods were conducted by our own national team. Through these three schools we were able to reach many of the adult leaders in the church, Bible School, Women's Missionary Society and Christian Endeavors. The month of July we held our first Vacation Church School in the State of Alabama with the Birmingham Church. Through this effort the children of the church were reached and helped.

Field Force.

The increase of our staff by a fourth-time service of a Young People's Secretary is a valuable asset to our work. If a fourth-time worker can add so much to the efficiency of the work, what would a full-time worker do? When we fully realize what it means to save and train the youth of the church, we, through our generous offerings to the Department of Religious Education, will support a full-time worker for the young people.

For a half dozen years we have had the able assistance and most congenial service of a children's worker. She has gone into the homes and churches of our brotherhood rendering a service that has brought a new day to the children of the church. Her name is a household word of the children throughout the states. It is with deep regret that our elementary work contemplates a change to an adult department. It is hoped that at this last moment she will rescind the action and continue the well-begun work.

Office.

We have endeavored to serve our constituents in every possible way from our office. When on the field, our untiring office girl keeps things going.

Financial Statement.

It is with some regret that we did not reach our full goal of the National Apportionment, but I am glad to say that we went beyond the amount raised last year. Last year the receipts of the Bible School were $2,557.95, and Christian Endeavor, $211.28, a total of $2,769.23. This year the receipts of the Bible School are $2,686.25, and the Christian Endeavor, $299.12, a total of $2,985.37. $3,500.00 National Apportionment less $2,985.37 leaves a deficit of $514.63. If we add the miscellaneous offering of $73.19 makes a total of $3,059.19, leaves a deficit of $450.81.

I wish to call attention to the Financial Statement as taken from the books of the United Christian Missionary Society. This report gives the church and its departments co-operating in the raising of the national budget. The red emphasizing the need or apportionment, the black figures showing just how you met the needs. If all of our schools had co-operated we would have raised above our full apportionment.

SIXTH ANNUAL REPORT OF ELEMENTARY SUPERINTENDENT, MISS D. L. BLACKBURN.

It is with pleasure that I make this my sixth annual report to this our Eleventh National Convention. I have tried to serve the Bible schools to the best of my ability and I have enjoyed the fellowship of all the churches and regret that I can't continue in this service of serving the churches.

Beginning July 1, 1926, this year's work I started with a vacation church school at Winston-Salem, N. C., with 142 enrolled. It was a school with the co-operation of all the other churches of Winston-Salem. We had a very fine expression from the churches in the way they supported the school in a financial way.

August was spent in attendance of some of the state conventions. I visited the convention at Lawrence, Kan., Jackson, Miss., and the National Convention at Louisville, Ky. September was spent about ten days at the office, planning work for the year. Then I attended the Arkansas State Convention at Pearidge, Ark., and the rest of the month visiting some of the Bible schools. On account of illness I could not work all of Arkansas at this time. October I worked Mississippi, giving the entire month to the state visiting the Bible schools and attending a district convention at the close of the month. November I attended the International Convention, the Youths' Convention and the Field Workers' Conference at Memphis, Tenn. A part of November and December was spent working Texas. Most of the Bible schools were visited at that time.

February I attended and took part on the program of the Tri-State Institute, Kansas City, Mo. The One-Day Convention was also attended at that time. I was in attendance at the Council of Religious Education in Chicago. About fifteen days was spent in the office writing the follow-up letters. March was spent working among the Bible schools in Oklahoma. I found the schools in a fine spirit for work. April I worked among the Bible schools in Kansas, visiting all the schools and helping in any way possible. I attended the Joint Executive Committee meeting at St. Louis, Mo., and helped to conduct an institute in a district convention at Independence, Mo. May was spent in visiting the schools in Alabama. I was in attendance at the commencement exercise at the Southern Christian Institute, Edwards, Miss. En route back to the office at Kansas City I visited some of the Bible schools in Missouri.

June one week was spent helping with the Young People's Conference at Edwards, Miss. One week was spent with a School of Methods in each of the following places: Martinsville, Va., with four credits given; Louisville, Ky., with four credits given; Dayton, Ohio, with seven credits given, making a total of fifteen credits given. This ended the missionary year, but since I worked two months longer, I want to report for the same. July, 1927, was spent with a vacation church school at Birmingham, Ala. A very fine school we had, with 49 enrolled and an excellent attendance until the very last day. I also attended the District Convention at the close of July at Oxmoor, Ala. August I have used the time in attending conventions—the Piedmont District Convention at Roanoke, Va., and the Ohio Convention at Springfield, Ohio. Some little time was spent at the office coming on to the convention, using the entire month. It has been a pleasure for me to work with the Bible schools and the workers of all the states.
